EIGHT DAYS OF HOPE DEPLOYS MASS FEEDING AND RAPID RESPONSE HEAVY TEAMS TO NORTHWEST INDIANA

Tupelo, MS– Eight Days of Hope (EDOH) is deploying their Mass Feeding and Rapid Response – Heavy teams to Northwest Indiana following the devastating storms that left over 183,000 without power and so many in need of immediate support.

“We are humbled to bring a little bit of hope back to the community of Lake County, IN, through hot meals following the heartbreaking derecho and tornadoes they’ve faced this week,” shared Feeding Director, Darren Bellanger, “Our team is prepared to supply hot meals to the community as long as there is a need.”

Beginning Saturday, August 15, both arms of ministry will begin their efforts to serve those in Northwest Indiana. The Rapid Response – Heavy team will be clearing large debris, cutting dangerous trees, tarping roofs, and more for homeowners.

“Families are experiencing their worst nightmare right now,” said Rapid Response Director, Dustin Sullivan, “they may not have the resources to clean up their homes or know what the next steps are – and when strangers show up to serve them, it’s like everything turns around and they see a light at the end of the tunnel. They see they aren’t alone, and they will make it. We’re called to be that light.”

At this time, volunteering is not open to the public. Their team is actively assessing the area to determine how they can best serve the community. To learn more or to give, visit eightdaysofhope.com.
